ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for creating a tour schematic, the tour schematic having at least a first lane from a first accent point to a second accent point. The method comprising: analyzing past load history, the past load history having a plurality of load data, wherein the load data has an origination location and a destination location; creating the tour schematic based on the past load history; and validating the created schematic.